MANSFIELD UNIVERSITY
CARONTAWAN 1987

CARONTAWAN

Our school has existed for 130 years, which seems like a long time. Its evolution has included the stages of classical seminary, normal school, state teachers college, college, and finally Mansfield University. When compared to Harvard and the College of William and Mary, which were founded in the 17th century, Mansfield is young. When compared to the early European universities such as Siena and Padua, we are infants!

But despite our relatively recent origin, we have a commonality with all our predecessors. All universities have had at their core students who seek to change their lives and faculty members who want to help them. All universities have had a curriculum and a mission. That mission was sometimes narrow - to prepare clergy -, sometimes broad - to provide a liberal education -, but a mission was always present.

Through the years, universities changed. The curriculum was expanded by the addition of new courses. Faculty members became more specialized. Classrooms became part of an elaborate physical plant and clubs, teams, and social activities became more important. Students changed also. Their numbers increased, and as their needs changed, they sought new services.

Mansfield is a reflection of the evolution we have described. Our student body has grown from less than 200 to more than 2,000. In 1857 our faculty included less than a dozen teachers, now we have 170.

Our original curriculum consisted of about 50 courses; today we offer more than 500. We had one building; now 30. Until a few years ago we sponsored three or four athletic teams, none for women; today we have 14, half of which are for women.

A discussion of the historical development of universities is less complicated than attempting to depict their future. Nevertheless, I will share some estimates. Many people believe that change comes slowly to the academic community. I suggest that during the next decade universities will change more rapidly than before. These changes will occur as a result of public pressure, as a result of student demands, and because of the impact of new methods of instruction.

I suggest that the character of the student body will also show significant change. Its age will change, its racial and ethnic composition will be different, and attendance patterns will be less traditional.

Finally, the composition of our faculties will change. Nationwide, it is estimated that 50% of the professoriate will retire within the next ten years. There is a growing concern related to the quantity and quality of the pool from which replacements will be drawn.

Mansfield University has met many challenges during its 130 years, including two world wars and the great depression. Mansfield has changed from a narrow, prescribed curriculum to a broad one with over 50 different major programs. Just as we met these earlier challenges, so will we meet those of the future. We will do so because education is of timeless value. Education is of inestimable value in obtaining job skills as the foundation for a career. But even more important than this, education makes students better. It makes them wiser; it gives them a perspective against which to measure their own lives; it gives them the sophistication and the virtue necessary to be citizens in a successful democracy. Our country, more than any other in the world, recognizes these values of education. These values lay behind the founding of Mansfield Classical Seminary in 1857; they underlie the Mansfield University of 1987; and they will support the Mansfield University of the twenty-first century.

For you, the members of the class of 1987, I can only hope and trust that Mansfield has, indeed helped to make you better. Recall for a moment what you were like as you first stepped onto the campus and compare that with what you are now. Now you are going into the wide world, and for many of you that is more than a little frightening. But you are ready, believe me, to join the generations of Mansfield graduates who have made their mark on that world. You may think that you are leaving Mansfield University, but that is not so. You are merely passing from the stage of student to that of alumnus. You will never, truly, leave Mansfield, and Mansfield will never leave you. I wish you the best.

CONCLUSION

At this time, I would like to take the opportunity to congratulate all of the 1987 graduates of MU and wish them good luck in the future. I am sure they will do fine in whatever they attempt in life. The same applies to MU. Our university has survived through the years and will survive in the future. I feel confident you are aware of our university's history but not aware of the plans for its future. I believe MU's future looks bright as a result of President Kelchner and the State System of Higher Education's efforts to improve MU and all of the state universities. Both Kelchner and SSHE came onto the scene in 1983. They seem to have given MU and PA's universities some direction, which appeared to be lacking under previous administrations. I believe the success they have achieved is a result of their emphasis on planning, review and evaluation. Although many at our university believe there are too many committees and meetings, President Kelchner has received quite a few ideas for improvement of MU from the diverse groups which comprise our university. Here are some of the ideas he has received:

- Renovate North Hall in order to consolidate all 3 libraries and provide some much needed office space
- Convert the Main Library into a student union
- An outdoor student mall located between South Hall and Manser which is designed to be a gathering place for students. This could be completed by the time you receive this book. This mall is intended to be part of a complex which includes an outdoor student mall, a student union, a library and a dining hall, all at the center of campus.
- Improvement of other physical facilities of MU such as Belknap, campus roads, sidewalks, roofs, etc.
- Enrollment management, which essentially means accepting only those students who have a reasonable chance of success in college and providing those students with proper and adequate advisement, placement and other services to help that student succeed
- Program review and evaluation in order to ensure students receive the best education for their money. This is to make sure the program is relevant, meeting the needs of students and has properly trained or knowledgeable professors. Program reviews would include course offerings, course context, staffing, examination of library holdings and other institutional resources. Concerning the last category, there has been a call for an increase in number and quality of instructional equipment.

Despite my confidence in MU, I am not as confident in the future of the CARONTAWAN, the yearbook of MU. It also has survived but its future is in doubt. Since the year we changed to Jostens as our publishing company, we have never delivered a yearbook on time. During this time, the number of staff members has decreased and the number of yearbook sales has fallen dramatically. In the fall of 1985, the CARONTAWAN almost went out of existence, but it was saved by a very small number of concerned students. Despite the efforts of that small group, the 1986 yearbook still was not completed by the end of the spring semester of 1986. Summer break and the shuffling of offices prevented the book from being completed over the summer. In the fall, that small group was no longer around to help with the book, but another small group came to the rescue. By year's end, the 1986 yearbook was finished and sent to Jostens. In the spring semester of 1987, the small group started work on the 1987 book. Poor planning and organization, missed events and the loss of staff members have caused some problems in completing the 1987 yearbook. The 1988 yearbook, the 70th anniversary of the CARONTAWAN, is already in trouble because of a lack of staff members. As of this writing, there will be five staff members and two of those five will graduate in December. Obviously, an adequate yearbook cannot be produced if less than 0.5% of the student population at MU participates. As problematic as the yearbook has become, the point has been reached again where a decision must be made about the future of the CARONTAWAN. In my opinion, if there is as little interest as there appears to be, it may be wise to just stop publication of the yearbook. Personally, I would like to see the yearbook saved.

To change speeds a little, I would like to apologize for the incompleteness of some of the sections and hope you would be understanding. At this time, I would like to graciously thank my staff members and congratulate them on a job well done for completing two yearbooks in less than two semesters. I believe this is a miraculous feat!!! I would also like to thank Larry McCullen, our Jostens representative, for helping us find out the status of the 1986 book and helping us complete both books. I must not forget the extra time given by Mr. Maresco, our advisor, to help solve our problems, which were many. There are many others I would like to thank but will not do so here. However, I really must recognize the help we received from the Public Relations Department and also Guy McMullen from the Alumni Office. To those who were not mentioned, you are not forgotten.

AGAIN TO ALL OF THE 1987 GRADUATES:

CONGRATULATIONS AND GOOD LUCK!!!

FROM THE STAFF . . .

The beginnings of formal education may be found in the teachings of Socrates from Ancient Greece. The University of Athens may well have been the model for things to come. A stately institution which valued the well-rounded education of its citizens as most important became the founding promise on which higher education would be built. Though different in scope and degree, the Greek University has stood as an example to the modern University.

Four years ago Mansfield State College was renamed Mansfield University. Many of the 1987 graduates were members of the first class accepted to Mansfield University. Now, four years later, the university bids them farewell and safe journey.

Their time at Mansfield has seen sweeping changes. Along with a change in title, Mansfield found new leadership from Interim President Rod Kelchner. In the coming years offices were moved, programs changed, and most importantly students, the heart of the school, came and went. After more than a year of deliberation, the general education requirements were updated to meet the needs of a changing university. And recently a nursing program has been added. The school was stirred up by an NCATE evaluation and the students cheered as the basketball team headed to glory. And now, the academic policies have been rigorously reviewed and revised in the administration's "White Papers—An Agenda for the Nineties." Finally, word has come that North Hall will again be a functional part of the University.

As the symbol for the 1987 yearbook, the staff has chosen the sundial. First, it is a piece of history right out of Ancient Greece and the Greek Universities, symbolizing the wisdom of the early educators. Moreover, it marks the passage of time. As time has passed, Mansfield has flowed with the changes. Often Mansfield has been at the forefront of the academic community. And so, Mansfield looks ahead to a promising future.

MANSFIELD: THROUGH THE YEARS

Up on a hill in Mansfield town
In 1857,
A Seminary opened doors
To higher education.

In '62 the state took part
And gave the school a hand.
Mansfield, now State Normal School,
Showed promise to expand.

129

Under Professor Allen
The reputation grew
And by the fall of '74
North Hall stood high and new.

Alumni Hall was added, and
As 1900 came
The school was known for education,
Art and music fame.

Now came the teens and Dr. Straughn,
Who proved a clever gent.
He added studies in home ec
And boosted teacher prep.

And so by 1927
A new name was in order,
State Teacher's College it now read
Across the Mansfield Border.

With 1960 came a shorter name
But broader in degree,
An institute of liberal arts
Or briefly - M.S.C.

And now to bring us up to date
In good old '83
The hallowed halls of Mansfield State
Read University.

*Farewell my friend, farewell.
The year is over, we're off again
So pack the thoughts we've shared:*

Mansfield University

*My wishes hold you near my heart
And keep you in good care.
Until we meet again,
My friend, farewell.*

ELSIE E. BURK SERVICE AWARD

For his outstanding dedication and service to MU, Gomer Lewis '32 of Portland, Maine, was presented the 1986 Elsie E. Burk Service Award.

Over the past three years, the former Westfield, N.J., resident has been combing that state, recruiting students for MU. During that time, Lewis tackled an ambitious travel schedule, which included almost 100 high school visitations and more than 30 college fairs annually.

A retired high school teacher, Lewis has been personally responsible for generating over 300 applications to MU for each of the past three years.

When one graduates from MU, one becomes a member of the MU Alumni Association. This page and the next two pages show a few of the events and awards which comprise Alumni Weekend. For those of you who are now and those who will eventually be members, of the Alumni Association, this is a chance to look ahead. I am sure those who attend will find it to be a rewarding and memorable experience. It is a chance to visit the places on campus which hold special memories, see friends made while at MU, make new friends or possibly receive an award. So, go ahead, take a look ahead.

YOUNG ALUMNI AWARD

The 1987 Young Alumni Award was presented to Joseph P. Scartelli, Ph.D. '74, of Radford, Va.

The Young Alumni Award is presented to a member of the alumni body who was graduated within the last 20 years and gone on to achieve early success in his or her professional field.

A registered music therapist with the National Association for Music Therapy, Scartelli is recognized by that body as one of the top two music therapy researchers in the country.

Dr. Scartelli is most noted for his work with victims of cerebral palsy. He has developed a new treatment for CP victims which uses music therapy and biofeedback to overcome problems with muscular and speech disturbances. This treatment has given new hope to CP sufferers, by enabling some patients to control spastic muscle movements through relaxing effects of music therapy.

Scartelli received his doctorate in music education from the University of Miami (Fla.) in 1981. His work has been documented in several national journals.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.
1929-68

MLK III

On November 17, 1986, a resource center was dedicated to help advance human and cultural awareness through "helping people learn about others and learning to work together in harmony." Given the purpose of the center, it was natural that the resource center should be named after the slain civil rights leader, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Rachel Oliver, the 1986 Miss Black America, spent the day on campus meeting with students and administrators, however, the keynote speaker was Martin Luther King III. The slain civil rights leader's son urged the audience to emulate the dedication and commitment that his father had shown. At a press conference earlier in the day, he said that "we have come a long way, but we still have a long way to go." Civil rights are not only aimed at blacks, but also the poor, uneducated and handicapped.

I HAVE A DREAM . . . . .

At the dedication, MLK, Jr.'s son unveiled a couple of paintings by Ed Kasimbira. Both are permanent fixtures of the resource center in Memorial Hall. The painting in the picture in the center of the preceding page "is a collage depicting events in the civil rights leader's life revolving around King's statement, "I have a dream . . .". It shows the happier moments in his life, the Nobel Peace Prize. Jail bars run through the work because, as the perceptive artist says, "I think Dr. King spent many of those times that he was behind bars in deep reflection and prayer." I carefully avoided scenes of his untimely death because in my analysis, I find that his spirit is very much alive in the hearts and minds of all those connected with him and his organization." The painting in the picture on this page is simply a portrait of the late, great Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

SPEAKS ABOUT

THE U.S. AND U.S.S.R.

On April 30th, Dr. Vladimir Sakharov spoke to MU students and local citizens about Soviet-American rivalry in the Middle East and other important areas affecting relations between the U.S. and U.S.S.R. "It was in the Middle East that Sakharov served as a double agent for the U.S. While there, he provided details of the Middle East terrorist network and of specific operations aimed at the U.S. Born in Moscow but now a U.S. citizen, Sakharov received a doctorate, has written a book and appeared on network television several times while in the U.S. Besides the Middle East, he spoke on the increasing threat of Fundamentalism, the flaws in the foreign policy of the U.S., the tremendous increase in the birthrate of Moslem Soviet-Asian minorities as compared to the Russians, Soviet life in general, and the lack of Soviet studies (political, economic and cultural) by Americans.

ALPHA SIGMA TAU

Alpha Sigma Tau is one of four national social sororities on campus. AST is actively involved in social service activities with the community; working with the Lions Club, supporting Pine Mountains School for the handicapped in Kentucky, fund raising for the Cancer Society, etc. Members come from a variety of backgrounds and are active in many other campus organizations such as Campus Ministry, music fraternities, musical theatre, and different athletic teams. "Active, Self-Reliant, and Trustworthy" is our motto and that's what we are.

DELTA ZETA

Delta Zeta is more than just a self-perpetuating friendship organization. Members gain the opportunity to interact with peers, strengthen self-confidence, achieve academic excellence, develop leadership potential, and help others through national and local philanthropies. Delta Zeta enforces a comprehensive anti-hazing policy. Iota Theta Chapter, established at MU in 1966, is located in Laurel Manor B.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

The Inter-Fraternity Council (known as IFC) is the governing body of the social fraternities; its purpose is to promote the best interests of the fraternity system and that of the University.

IFC makes binding rules concerning fraternity policy and enforcement of such things as rushing, pledging, intramurals, scholarship, etc.

IFC kindles the spirit of cooperation among all four of the existing fraternities and promotes the highest ideals of fraternalism through its example.

ALL RESIDENCE HALL COUNCIL

The All Residence Hall Council is the governance body for the residence halls. It sets hall policy, approves hall budgets, and funds activities both on the hall and campus-wide level.

In addition to recreational activities, ARHC sponsors two scholarships and various community-oriented events.

ARHC is an active member of the National association of College and University Residence Halls (NACURH). Delegates are sent to conferences on the local, regional, and national level.

Social Work Club

The Social Work Club is an organization open to all Mansfield University students. It is an integral part of the department of social work in so far as it seeks to foster dialogue between the faculty and the students. The club meets regularly to determine members' attitudes and feelings regarding policy, requirements, curriculum, etc. The club serves as a primary source and organ of student opinion.

NON-TRADITIONAL STUDENT ASSOCIATION

NON-TRADITIONAL STUDENT ASSOCIATION

This is a group that represents the older, returning and commuting students. Their purpose is to discuss problems of non-traditional students and how to effect a change. They also lend support and advise new non-traditional students.
